Re: Alliance of Arts Advocates, C-00218594,
Administrative Expenses, 1995-96 Election Cycle

Dear Ms. Silcox:

Pursuant to your letter of September 1, 1995, the committee set forth information with respect to reportable administrative expenses during the 1993-94 election cycle. Because we are now into the 1995-96 election cycle, and because the committee's circumstances with respect to administrative expenses are the same and are expected to remain the same, I am also setting forth below the same information with respect to the current election cycle.

The committee is a very small organization that does not have office space, does not have employees or consultants, and does not conduct active operations. It incurs no charges for telephone service or other overhead items. The committee does not actively raise money, and any receipts would be unsolicited. Its operations have been limited to making small contributions from its existing funds and filing reports with the FEC. If this should change for any reason during the election cycle the committee would report such expenses.

The committee's work is done by myself, as Treasurer, and another individual active in the arts who volunteers his time. Please let me know if you have any additional questions.

Sincerely,

William R. White
